

Joe Hogan

about:

Joe Hogan is renowned worldwide for his experience in basketmaking and design. Over the last 27 years he has turned the traditional basket into a contemporary collector's piece

Joe was drawn to basketmaking initially because he was in a position to grow his own raw material - willow. He sensed that this involvement from growing through to making would prove deeply satisfying and inspiring. It also had a profound influence on the style and diversity of his work, encouraging him to explore and develop new designs based on old traditions.

Joe has demonstrated, taught and exhibited both at home and abroad. His work is in many private and public collections, including the National Museum of Ireland. He is the author of Basketmaking in Ireland and co-curated the National Craft Gallery's hugely successful exhibition 'Irish Basket Making: Tradition Today'.
